No More Suffering

If you are troubled with indigestion get a bottle of Kodol Dyspepsia Cure and see how quickly it will cure you.

Geo. A. Thomson, of Spencer, Ia., says: "Have had dyspepsia for twenty years. My case was almost hopeless. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure was recommended and I used a few bottles of it and it is the only thing that has relieved me. Would not be without it. Have doctored with local physicians and also at Chicago, and even went to Norway with hopes of getting some relief, but Kodol Dyspepsia Cure is the only remedy that has done me any good, and I heartily recommend it. Every person suffering with indigestion or dyspepsia should use it." Sold at Trout's drug store.

Seven Months for Courting.

Seven months is long enough for courting, according to Father Angelo, of Cincinnati, who lectured in Philadelphia, recently, on the "Common Evils of the Age."

Silly novels, Father Angelo said, pervert the minds of young girls who read them. Dance halls he pronounced ante-chambers of hell. He advised young women to go only to places where they know every one. The practice of "keeping company" Father Angelo declared to be one of the most dangerous pastimes of the age. He said, in mapping out a program for young people during courtship, "the young man should call about 8:30 p. m. All the lights should be turned on and members of the family should be present. The water should leave about 10:30 o'clock. After seven months of attention the couple should come to an understanding." For a young man to keep a girl waiting for him for years is a disgrace, the speaker asserted.

Joseph Sipe, of Salina, was in town last Saturday.

If All the Clocks should Stop.

Supposing all the clocks and watches in the world should suddenly run down with a click and a burr and a clatter to-night at 1 o'clock. How many boys and girls are there who would be able to tell the right time to go to school to-morrow morning? It wouldn't be an easy matter, would it, even if the sun was shining out warm and bright? But that's all because there are so many time pieces that we get to depending on them. Over in China where the people are very poor and can't afford to own watches, how do you suppose any one knows when to go to dinner, especially if it's a cloudy day?

Why, by looking at the cat. For in China a cat is not only a mouser and a pet, but a clock. When a Chinaman wants to know the time he runs to the household tabby, opens her eyes and at once tells what time it is. This he does by looking at the pupils of the eye, which he has discovered to be of varying sizes at different hours of the day, being affected by the position of the sun, even when the day is cloudy.

Another curious clock, which any of our boys and girls could easily make, is used by the natives of the Pacific islands. It is made of the half of a cocoanut shell, cut smooth at the edges, and having a very small hole bored in the bottom of it. This shell is placed in a pail of water and a stream spurts up through the hole in a tiny fountain. In just one hour—so carefully has the hole been bored to the proper size—the shell sinks with a gurgling sound that serves the same purpose as the striking of a clock. The native promptly lifts it out and sets it afloat again to measure the next hour.

Beware of Counterfeits.

"DeWitt's is the only genuine Witch Hazel Salve," writes J. L. Cucker, of Centre, Ala. "I have used it in my family for piles, cuts and burns for years and can recommend it to be the best salve on the market. Every family should keep it, as it is an invaluable household remedy, and should always be kept on hand for immediate use." Mrs. Samuel Gage, of North Bush, N. Y., says: "I had a fever sore on my ankle for twelve years that the doctors could not cure. All salves and blood remedies proved worthless. I could not walk for over two years. Finally I was persuaded to try DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve, which has completely cured me. It is a wonderful relief." DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve cures without leaving a scar. Sold at Trout's drug store.

The Sentinel of the Soul.

Those who indulge fretful feelings, either of anxiety or irritation, know not what an opening they thereby give to the devil in their hearts. "Fret not thyself," says the Psalmist; "else shalt thou be moved to do evil." And in entire harmony with this warning of the elder Scriptures is the precept of St. Paul against undue indulgence of anger. "Let not the sun go down upon your wrath, neither give place to the devil." Peace is the sentinel of the soul, which keeps the heart and the mind of the Christian through Christ Jesus. So long as this sentinel is on guard and doing his duty, the castle of the soul is kept secure. But let the sentinel be removed, and the way is opened immediately for an attack upon the fortress.—Bishop Hantington.

A Thousand Dollar's Worth of Good.

A. H. Thurnes, a well known coal operator of Buffalo, Ohio, writes: "I have been afflicted with kidney and bladder trouble for years, passing gravel or stone with excruciating pain. I got no relief from medicines until I began taking Foley's Kidney Cure, then the result was surprising. A few doses started the brick dust like fine stones and now I have no pain across my kidneys and I feel like a new man. It has done me a $1000 worth of good. Sold by all dealers.

Short Stories.

The professor was lecturing to the medical class and stopped occasionally to ask a question. "Suppose," he said, "a young woman in walking on a slippery pavement, fell and dislocated her ankle and you happened to be on the spot, what would you do?" "Rubber," answered the flip-pant and outthinking young man. The rest of the class held its breath till the professor went on: "Quite correct. A vigorous rubbing would serve to keep down the swelling until remedies could be procured and applied." And the students breathed again.

An Irishman traveling in France was challenged by a Frenchman to fight a duel, to which he readily consented, and suggested shillelahs as weapons. "That won't do," said the Frenchman's second. "As challenged party you have the right to choose the arms, but chivalry demands that you should decide upon a weapon with which French men are familiar." "Is that so?" replied the Irishman. "Very well, we will fight with guillotines."

A lively looking porter stood on the rear platform of a sleeping car in the Pennsylvania station when a fussy, plethoric old man clambered up the steps. He stopped at the door, puffed for a moment and then turned to the young man in uniform. "Porter," he said, "I'm going to St. Louis, to the fair. I want to be well taken care of. I pay for it. Do you understand?" "Yes, sir, but—"

"Never mind any 'buts.' You listen to what I say. Keep the train boys away from me. Dust me off whenever I want you to. Give me an extra blanket, and if there is anyone in the berth over me, slide him into another. I want you to—"

"But say, boss, I—"

"Young man, when I'm giving instructions, I prefer to do the talking myself. You do as I say. Here is a two-dollar bill, I want you to get the good of it. Not a word sir."

The train was starting. The porter pocketed the bill with a grin, and swung himself to the ground.

"All right, boss!" he shouted. "You can do the talking if you want to. I'm powerful sorry you wouldn't let me tell you—but I ain't going out on that train."

Poor Feeble (about to be operated on for appendicitis): Doctor, before you begin I wish you would send and have our pastor, Dr. Catter. Certainly, if you wish it, but—

"I'd like to be opened with prayer."

A preacher out in Kansas is responsible for this:

"I had occasion one time to hold Christmas services in a little town not far from Topeka. The choir was composed of two old maids and two bachelors. When the chorus to the official Christmas hymn was reached the old maids alone sang, 'Unto us a child's been born,' and the old bachelors followed up with 'Wonderful, wonderful!' Then some wag in the front pew had to snicker. That settled it! The choir quit abruptly and the service came to an end."

"The beauty doctor told a good story about a hair restorer," said a well known Osage business man recently, "but I know a better one. With several other men I was associated, several years ago, in the manufacture of a restorer. We had a fakir selling the remedy and this was one of his tales: 'A woman came to me the other day for her eighth bottle. She said she liked the taste of it so well I was frightened and took her into a private office and told her to show her tongue. She stuck it out and there was a half-inch of hair on it. To keep it from hurting the business we had to feed her camphor balls all summer to keep the moths out of her stomach.'"

250 A YEAR MONTHLY REVIEWS. The more you read there are, the more indispensable is the Review of Reviews. "Indispensable." "The one magazine I feel I must take." "The Review of Reviews is the best of its kind." "An education in public affairs and current literature." "These are some of the phrases one hears from noted people who read the Review of Reviews. The more magazines there are, the more necessary is the Review of Reviews, because it brings together the best that is in all the most important journals of the world. Such is the flood of periodical literature that nowadays people say that the only way to keep up with it is to read the Review of Reviews. Entirely over and above this review, by section, it has more original matter and illustrations than most magazines, and the most timely and important articles printed in any monthly. "Predictable" is the most useful section of all in Dr. Albert Shaw's illustrated "Progress of the World," where public events and issues are so ably and lucidly explained in every issue. Many a subscriber writes, "This department alone is worth more than the price of the magazine." The unique cartoon department, depicting current history in caricature, is another favorite. The Review of Reviews reveals five continents, and yet is American, first and foremost. "What in public life, the members of Congress, professional men, and the great captains of industry who must keep 'up with the times,' intelligent men and women all over America, have decided that it is "indispensable."
